

Timothy J. Connelly is the Executive Director of the Massachusetts Technology Collaborative, or MassTech. Tim is an experienced leader with distinguished career in financial services, as well as a passion for civic engagement, social impact, workforce development, and regional economic growth.

Tim was most recently employed at Brown Brothers Harriman, where he spent 30 years working as a managing director, and as a General Partner. At Brown Brothers Harriman, he led service delivery enterprise, innovation and product support, and investor services units. He retired from the firm in December, 2014.

He currently serves on the technology advisory board of BDO Consulting. He is a member of the board of directors of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay and Merrimack Valley, and chaired the United Way's 2014-2015 development campaign. Connelly is a member of the board of trustees of the Carroll School and New England Disabled Sports, a Corporator of Northeastern University, and he serves on the finance and investment committee at the Cotting School.

Tim has served as part-time Faculty Member at the Boston College Carroll School of Business and an Executive in Residence at Northeastern's D'Amore-McKim School of Business. Tim is a graduate of Williams College, has an MBA from Northeastern University, and holds a Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) designation.